Tuition Surcharge

Undergraduate students who initially enrolled at Appalachian in the fall of 1994 and after, must comply with a North Carolina State law that mandates a tuition surcharge for students who reach over 140 attempted hours. It is often confusing and hard to tell if you will be subject to the tuition surcharge.

If you change your major several times, withdraw from a semester, or bring in a lot of transfer credit, you may be in danger of reaching this tuition surcharge threshold. Please consult the registrar’s office if you feel you may be close to this limit so you can begin planning for this added cost. If you do encounter the tuition surcharge, there is a tuition surcharge appeal process which can be reviewed at the registrar’s website.
